LONGMANS, GREEN, & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

The History of Trade Unionism.

By Sidney and Beatrice Webb. With map, appendix of tables, bibliography, etc., and index. 8vo, 574 pages, $5.00.

 This work, the result of three years' special investigation, will describe the growth and development of the Trade Union Movement in the United Kingdom from 1700 down to the present day. Founded almost entirely upon material hitherto unpublished, it is not a mere chronicle of Trade Union organization or record of strikes, but gives, in effect, the political history of the English working-class during the last 150 years.

The Best Key to Educational Books.

American Educational Catalogue

whose value to the trade is proved by the fact that it is now in its twenty-fifth year, and that upwards of claims to be the best practical aid to the dealer in or buyer of school-books.

With its alphabetical arrangement by authors, its separate class-index, carefully sub-classified to an extent not followed by any other catalogue, its completeness and accuracy, it is presented as the best finding-list, the most convenient order-list, and the most satisfactory class-catalogue for school use.

The catalogue is made entirely new each year, to omit books which have dropped out of use and to include all live books, and all new books (ready or to be ready for the Fall) are added in their proper alphabetical place.

The page giving the key to publishers will not be given in imprint editions unless specially ordered.

This Catalogue is specially planned to be of service for circulation by retailers among schools and private buyers. The imprint edition possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. No imprint edition of less than 100 copies can be supplied. Orders for editions should be sent to us at once.

CASH TERMS:

Imprint edition—without publishers' advertisements:

With sole imprint of ordering firm, and stitched, per 100 copies, $5.00; per 1000, $40.00.

There is no extra charge for printing name, business card, etc., on the imprint page; the last page is left blank at the disposal of the dealer, but any copy for that page, advertising special lines or general business, will be set up and printed thereon for $5.00, or for $1.00 if plate is sent.

Copy for imprint and shipping directions should accompany the order.

The regular Educational Number of "THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY" will be supplied at 25 cents per copy, or five for $1.00, postpaid.

INDEX TO ADVERTISERS.

NOTES IN SEASON.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have in press "An Easter Vacation," a story by Moira O'Neill; also "Everybody's Fairy Godmother," by Dorothy Quigley.

THOMAS W. DURSTON & SON, Syracuse, N. Y., will publish on the 20th "The American Musical Directory," containing a list of all the manufacturers of musical instruments, including piano manufacturers, music dealers, and music publishers of the United States and Canada.

HARPER & BROS.' latest books include "Perlycross," by R. D. Blackmore; "A Traveller from Altruria," by W. D. Howells; "From the Easy Chair," third series, by George William Curtis; "Pastime Stories," by Thomas Nelson Page; and "A Likely Story," a farce, by Mr.

LEE & SHEPARD will publish a new edition of Baron Nils Posse's "Educational Gymnastics," Baron Nils Posse's "Educational Gymnastics, under the title of "Special Kinesiology of Educational Gymnastics," They also announce a book on mushrooms, by Captain Julius A. Palmer; "The Boy's Own Guide to Fishing, Tackle-Making and Fish-Breeding," by John Harrington Keene; "A Modern Magdalene," another novel on the social evil, by Virna Woods; and new editions of Prof. Do'beare's "Matter, Ether, and Motion," and Sam Walter Foss'
"Back Country Poems."

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have just ready the first and second volumes of the new Present-Day Primers, namely, " Early Church History: a sketch of the first four centuries," by J. V Bartlet, lecturer on church history in Oxford; and "The Printed English Bible," by Richard Lovett. The latter is illustrated by reproductions of title-pages and other portions of Tin-dale's, Coverdale's, and other sixteenth-century Bibles. Each volume will be complete in itself, and will be the work of a writer specially competent to deal with the subject treated.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS add to their announcements for the summer season as follows: In the Autonym Library, No. 2, "Mad Sir Uchtred," by S. R. Crockett, author of "The Raiders," etc.; in the Incognito Library, No. 2, "The Honorable Stanbury and Others," by Two; No. 3, "Helen," by Vocs. They will begin in July the publication, and or the side. gin in July the publication, under the title of The Hudson Library, of a new series of fiction. The volumes will be issued bi-monthly, and the series will be registered as second-class matter.
The July volume will be "Love and Shawl-Straps." by Annette L. Noble, whose "Uncle Jack's Executors," issued some years back, made for itself a distinctive success. "Eyes Like the Sea," which they also have in press, is the latest work of the veteran Hungarian author, Maurice-Jókai, who is regarded by his countrymen as the first of Hungarian writers. The story is largely autobiographical, but is none the less a most stirring and dramatic romance. "No Enemy: the story of a gentleman tramp," by Elbert G. Hubbard, has a certain timeliness in connection with the attempts now being made on the part of organized tramps to constitute them-selves a political power. The volume will con-tain twenty-eight full-page illustrations. "On and Off the Saddle: characteristic sights and scenes from the great northwest to the Antilles," is a series of graceful travel sketches by a well-known New Yorker, who uses for his volume the pseudonym of Lispenard Rutgers. In the Story of the Nations Series the next volume will be "The Story of South Africa," comprising the Cape Colony, Natal, the Orange Free State, the South African Republic, and all other territory south of the Zambesi, by George M. Theal, of the Cape Colony Civil Service. "The Story of Africa" will form a companion volume to "The Story of Australasia," recently issued, and will make an important addition to the varied history of the British colonies.

opens with the funeral of M. Bernard des Vignes, who has left his widow very rich. She first contemplates marriage but gives it up to please her son. This young man gives her great uneasiness and finally dies. The book leaves the mother again preparing for marriage, and at last acknowledging that her son had been best loved by "Henriette," a young sewing girl, on whom the mother had visited her insane jealously.

During its successful run as serial in the Atlantic Monthly, the author's curiously intimate knowledge of the scenery and inhabitants of eastern Tennessee was shown in every instalment. Again "the moonshiners" play startling parts, and all the horrors of illicit whiskey distilling and its consequences are brought to light. Miss Murfree shows poetical religious feeling in telling of "His vanished star," which the book shows was "a celestial visitant charged with a moral mission to several besides the hero."

Ebers, G: Cleopatra: a romance; from the German by Mary J. Safford. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 2 v., 7+302; 2+296 p. sq. S. cl., $1.50; pap., 80 c. [1752 Cleopatra's fleet, that sailed against Greece, had already been defeated, when the story opens at Alexandria and Mark Antony's brilliant career forever ended at Actium. The few remaining events in the lives of these royal lovers, Antony's tragic death, the coming of the Roman conqueror, and Cleopatra's dramatic exit from life are related with many details. The author shows a strong admiration for the Egyptian queen, and depicts her as a tenderly loving mother and faithful friend. The passionate attachment of her women and others near to her are offered as proofs of the fine qualities claimed for her. A second romance, with political intrigues and vivid description of the life of the period, fill out the volumes.

The concluding volumes of Lord Augustus Loftus autobiographical memoirs. In 1862 he was recalled from Berlin, and sent as English embassador to Munich; in 1865 he returned again to the court of Prussia, where he remained representing England until the close of the Franco-Prussian War and the formation of the German Empire. Shortly afterward he was sent to Russia, where he completed his diplomatic career with the experiences of the war between Russia and Turkey in 1877 and 1878, and the subsequent negotiations for peace. The volume finishes with an account of his return to England in 1879. The light thrown upon the many political events of which he was a witness through the secret history his position made known to him, and the interesting details of the personalities of the famous men of the period, make the volumes of unusual value to historical students.

Long, Frank Carleton. The Duke of Arcanum: a novel. Chic., Laird & Lee, [1894.] c. 8-452 p. il. D. (Library of choice fiction, no. 74.) pap., 50 c. [1778 Stanley Edgcumb, full of noble purposes and philanthropic philosophy, comes into contact with those oppressed with the bitter afflictions of a dire and relentless poverty. The scene is laid in Chicago in 1870. In describing the temptations of poverty and the sins which the author claims should be judged with charity, the details are hardly fitting for fiction. The great Chicago fire of 1871 plays an important part in the story.

Mead, W: E: Elementary composition and rhetoric. Bost., Leach, Shewell & Sanborn, [1894.] c. 286 p. D. cl., 90 c. [1785] This book is an outgrowth of several years of experience in teaching English composition in secondary schools and in college, and it contains nothing that has not stood the test of actual trial. It does not profess to be a guide to English criticism, but aims rather to give brief practical suggestions to young writers. Author is professor of the English language in Wesleyan University.

An elaboration of a clever story that appeared in the Atlantic under the same title a few months ago. The author is a brother of Donald G. Mitchell ("Ik Marvel"). The hero is a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church, whose peculiarity is a tendency to answer letters in handwriting similar to that of the sender. This is used against him, and leads to many skilfully managed complications and many interesting discussions on questions of right and wrong, opinions, motives, etc. ions, motives, etc.

Moore, G: Esther Waters: a novel. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., [1894.] 350 p. D. (The Melbourne ser., no. 23.) pap., 25 c. [1790 Esther Waters is a servant-girl who, while kitchenmaid in the family of a philanthropic woman, is seduced by one of the grooms having care of betting and race-horses. Her subsequent life, her devotion to her child, and suffering on his account, and her final remion with the man who had betrayed her, make the story. Life among turfmen and their servants, and the different phases of life below stairs, of charitable institutions, and all the various positions into which an unlettered servant-girl can drift, are described with almost too much frankness for general reading.

The Buddhistic chronicle here translated fills the gap left by the Gospels in their narration of the life of Christ, from the time he left Judea at the age of twelve until his return at the age of thirty. It tells of his study of the Vedas with the Brahmins, his eloquent denunciation of idol worship which caused him to leave the Buddhists, his missionary preaching among the Zoroastrians, and of his final return to Judea. The original manuscript is in Lhasse, and there are various copies in Buddhist monasteries.

By the author of "Contemporary socialism." Mr. Rae's inquiry is based upon English statistics; the result of his investigation as to the probable consequences of a general adoption of an eight-hour working day throughout England is that "no real advantage is gained by long hours, and if we are once persuaded that as much work can be done in a working day of eight hours as in a working day of any longer limit, we can shorten our own day without caring in the least what other nations do."

"There are a very great number of persons who are no longer content to take their religious creeds upon authority, but who are demanding a reason for what they have been taught, and who want a faith which shall harmonize with what in other ways they are beginning to learn about the universe." In this spirit the author deals with the sources of the gospels and their credibility, and reviews the life and teachings of Jesus. The appendix furnishes an attempt to reconstruct the common source used by the writers of the gospels. There is also a full index to passages quoted from the gospels.

[1807] These forty-three brief sermons to children were preached by Dr. Stall, the author of the well-known "Methods of church-work," while pastor of the Second English Lutheran Church at Baltimore. With some object of every-day life presented to the eye, the author, after the manner of the parables, presents the important truths of the gospel to the comprehension of both old and young.

Straus, Oscar S. Roger Williams, the pioneer of religious liberty. N. Y., The Century Co., 1894. c. 9+257 p. fac-simile, D. cl., $1.25.

Several biographies of Roger Williams have been written, most of which are now out of print. Since the publication of these earlier works much valuable additional information concerning the pioneer of religious liberty in America has come to light. Mr. Straus, the author of the present biography, has given careful study to the subject of Roger Williams and his work. He has searched anew the records of the Charter House, where Williams attended school as a pensioner, and also the records of Pembroke College. Among other things he has succeeded in determining the year of Williams' birth, a matter which has long been the subject of controversy among genealogists and historians of New England. Roger Williams is one of the most picturesque characters in our history. His life was one long battle for religious liberty.

Tadema, Laurence Alma. The wings of Icarus; being the life of one Emilia Fletcher, as revealed by herself. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 4+252 p. S. cl., $1.25.

Truly poetic and intensely sad is the story told first in letters, then in journal form, of the devotion of two woman friends. The writer is an English girl who has inherited great wealth and beautiful estates, and with them the care of two conventional old English gentle-women. Her love-story, in which her friend is the innocent cause of tragedy, is told with exquisite pathos. Her hopes and dreams and aspirations are "the wings of Icarus," which melted in her fatal love and left her hopeless and despairing after one last effort to save from suicide her husband and her friend.

THE BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

THE fifteenth annual meeting of the Book-sellers' and Stationers' Provident Association of the United States was held at the sales-room of Messrs. Bangs & Co., 739 Broadway, New York, on the evening of the 6th inst. Owing to the bad weather the meeting was not as well attended as usual, though the few present made up in earnestness and enthusiasm for the lack of numbers.

There being no business which took precedence, the secretary, Mr. Wilbur B. Ketcham, proceeded to read the following report in behalf of the Board of Trustees:

To the members of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association:

We present to you this, our fifteenth annual report, and it is with pleasure and pride that we take this opportunity to congratulate you on our success in the past and the prospect of still greater success in the future.

The past year has been a most unfavorable one to all insurance associations and companies. It has been hard work to secure members, and still more difficult for members to pay their assessments. During the year a number of our members have been obliged to relinquish their membership, not of their own desire, but because of business reverses.

We, however, can report, notwithstanding the unfavorable business year, that we are on a more substantial basis than for any year of the past.

Every claim has been paid and the following report will show that our finances are in a most excellent condition.

It will not be out of place to state here that our association has been examined by the Insurance Department of this State during the year, and it is with pleasure we state that our affairs were found satisfactory to them.

The time of office of five of your trustees will expire to-day, and it is your duty to elect at this meeting five men to serve for three years in their places. The work connected with the association constantly increases. Your board have met regularly during the year and have endeavored to give their best thought to your interests.

The future depends upon every member of this association and the efforts they may make to increase our membership.

We should be glad to have suggestions offered at this meeting how this can best be brought about.

Our death rate has not increased and our expenses are low for the reason that no one receives any compensation and only the actual expenses incurred are paid by the association.

We are under obligations to Messrs. Burkhardt, Holden, Vogelius, and Kelly for their management of an Authors' Reading, the proceeds of which made a substantial increase in our funds.

In closing this report we can do no better than to repeat the following which was taken from our report of last year:

"The superiority of the assessment system lies in the fact that while it furnishes insurance at about one-half the rates which old-system companies are compelled to charge, it also provides absolute security for the payment of its death losses. Every policy holder, so long as he continues to profit by the protection furnished, must contribute his proportion of the amount required for its death losses and expenses. Consequently, the greater the amount of insurance in force the greater the security. If the assessment is not paid when due the policy lapses and the liability ceases. The reserve of companies conducted upon this system is therefore practically unlimited. It entails no expense for management and can never be squandered in the payment of high salaries or lost in unprofitable investments.

"In many respects the reserve of the assessment system is like the reserve force of a nation—such as the United States—where there is practically no standing army, but where the State has power, in case it is required, to call out every man who is over eighteen and under forty-five years of age. That such a reserve is amply sufficient for the protection of the American people, history has most satisfactorily demonstrated. An assessment company has this reserve, and furnishes security for the payment of its death losses unsurpassed by any other system of insurance in existence."

The reports of the various insurance companies show that for old-line companies the expenses were forty-six per cent. of the amount paid for death claims and dividends and of the mutual companies only nineteen per cent.

Our record justifies us in saying that for prompt payment of death claims, careful management, a judicial selection of its risks, our association stands second to none. It gives you life insurance of the best quality and furnishes it at actual cost.

The report was adopted unanimously. Then followed the election of five trustees for the three years—1894-1896, which resulted in the choice of Charles T. Dillingham, A. Growoll, Joseph F. Vogelius, Wilbur B. Ketcham, and John H. Ammon.

Before adjournment Mr. Dillingham delivered a brief address, in which he pointed out the necessity of unceasing work to keep up the membership of the association by new and, if possible, younger recruits. He also called attention to the fact, not generally understood, that the membership is not restricted to those connected with the book and stationery trades, but that all persons properly accredited are eligible. He further announced that it was under consideration to modify the Constitution so that women (both married and unmarried), also in other professions and work than the book and stationery trade, might be entitled to membership.

Mr. Dillingham then alluded to a plan that had been suggested to extend the membership and usefulness of the association. This is, in short, a project to establish a new society whose purpose it shall be to draw the members of the book, stationery, and kindred trades and their friends closer together, to provide social entertainment at least once a month, and to further generally the interests of the trades with which the membership is connected, and that of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association in particular.

Mr. J. N. Wing read the following prospectus of the proposed association, and spoke warmly in its favor:

We, the undersigned, agree to organize an association to be known as The Booksellers' AND STATIONERS' SOCIAL LEAGUE, its object being to bring together, monthly, members of the book and stationery trades and associate branches, for their mutual benefit, and to further the interest of The Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association, by giving entertainments for its benefit, and securing new members.

Membership will not be limited to members of The Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association; only its members, however, will be eligible to hold office of any kind in this association.

Dues will be twenty-five (25) cents monthly, payable on the first of every month.

Officers to consist of fifteen members as a board of managers, and they will elect from these a president, first and second vice-president, secretary, and treasurer.

By-laws. As soon as a sufficient number of subscribers have been obtained a meeting will be called, when proper by-laws will be submitted and the board of managers elected.

About fifty persons have already signed the foregoing, though it has not yet been circulated for signatures. The project met with great favor at the annual meeting, and promises of support were not lacking. It is the intention of the movers of this plan to "count noses" during the summer and in the fall to call a meeting, and then to complete the organization of a long-needed booksellers' association. It is certainly to be hoped that the efforts of the gentlemen who have taken this initiative will meet with success, and that by the end of the year such a league as that proposed shall have become an accomplished fact.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS' REMOVAL.

THE new building of Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons, at 153, 155 and 157 Fifth Avenue, between 21st and 22d Streets, is now completed, and the firm has been occupying it since May 23. The importance of this removal is equalled by the celerity with which the mechanical part of moving has been accomplished. The first announcement of the firm's intention to move up-town was made on October 13 last, and it was not until some time after that the ground was opened and the foundations laid. Only a little more than six months, therefore, has been required to erect this handsome six-story building and complete all the details of removal. There were over 300,000 books to be packed in trays and boxes, besides manuscripts, letters, and the accounts of business for fifty years. These have been re-moved within the space of a month, and without any interruption of business or damage to the stock. The wholesale department was reduced in the old building to the estimated proportion of books which it might be necessary to deliver for two or three weeks, the old manuscripts were placed in separate safes, and gradually the retail department was limited to the demands of a day, until the old building was like a desert and the new one was as well filled as if it had been gradually furnished for a decade. All of the departments are now in good running order.

The new building is a fine structure of white limestone, graceful, with classic simplicity, and has been erected by the Scribners exclusively for their own use. The first floor is given up entirely to retail stock, and impresses one at once by its roomy proportions, its liberal supply of light and air, and its handsome fittings. The bookcases, extending from the floor to the high ceiling, are made of polished oak, and fitted with shelves of smooth glass, which offer no friction to the handsome bindings, and are easily cleaned. Now that the shelves are filled with books the effect upon the observer is more that of a handsome library than a book-store. A broad flight of marble steps leads up to the second floor, on which are the publication offices of the firm, and the manufacturing, advertising, and wholesale departments. Here also the fittings are of polished oak, while a feature of special interest to all booksellers is the very neat and attractive trade-room, carpeted, furnished, and fitted with shelves containing a complete library of the firm's publications. In this room all members of the trade visiting the city will be made welcome, and will be invited to make their headquarters during their stay. The third floor is given up to the magazine department, the fourth floor to the subscription-book department, while the fifth and sixth floors, as well as the basement, contain the stock. Two electric elevators facilitate access to all these various departments. The building is also lighted by electricity.

This removal places the Scribners in the very centre of the bookselling section of the city. One by one the various publishers have been gathering on Fifth Avenue and 23d Street. Only a few are now left in the neighborhood of Astor Place, the former publishing centre. This is the fifth removal of the firm of Scribners during their long career of forty-eight years. The steady increase of the business is effectively illustrated in the statement of these removals. In its first quarters, in the rear of Rev. Dr. Gardner Spring's old Brick Church, between Park Row and Nassau Street, on the site now occupied by the Times building, the firm of Baker & Scribner in 1846 was paying a rent of four hundred dollars per annum. The present building has been erected by the firm of Charles Scribner's Sons at an expense of little less than five hundred thousand dollars. The firm of Baker & Scribner occupied its first quarters from 1846 until 1856, and it was during these ten years that the famous J. T. Headley books, and Ik Marvel's "Reveries" and "Dream Life" were published. In 1856 the firm, which had some time before become that of Charles Scribner, moved to more convenient quarters at 377 and 379 Broadway, corner of White Street. Later Mr. Scribner moved to Grand Street, then to the building at 654 Broadway, where Hours at Home and Scribner's Monthly (now The Century) were founded, and from there, in 1875. to the quarters at 743 and 745 Broadway, which it has just vacated. There it was that Scribner's Magazine was called into life.

Throughout its career the firm has done no printing, but confined itself exclusively to book publishing. Its publications represent in almost every case the works of living authors. In this way the Scribners' list of publications is, in part, an index to what has been deemed the best of current literature for the past half century, while a notable feature of their business has always been a line of standard theological works. A large importing trade has also been an important part of their business, conducted for a long time under the name of Scribner & Welford, but now included under the name of Charles Scribner's Sons. Scribner's Monthly, published first in 1870, and sold to the Century Co. in 1882, and the new Scribner's Magazine started in 1887, are other notable features of their career.

THOMAS NILES-IN MEMORIAM.

THERE is but little to add to the few facts given last week regarding the life and labors of Mr. Thomas Niles, of Roberts Brothers. During the sixty-nine years of his busy life Mr. Niles kept his own personality almost wholly out of the knowledge of those with whom he came in contact. He was very modest and retiring, and almost dreaded public appreciation and all statements about him that were not solely connected with his career as a publisher. He was unusually courteous and approachable for business purposes, but kept almost every one outside his private life. He carried this peculiar dislike to publicity so far that he had not even had a picture made of himself, so that it is impossible to follow our usual practice and add his portrait to our collection of the influential American publishers who have passed away. We briefly run through the meagre details of his business career once more.

Mr. Niles was born in Boston in 1825, and at the early age of fourteen entered the store of W. D. Ticknor & Co. at the "old corner," where he worked side by side with the late James T. Fields until 1855, when the latter became a partner in the firm, and Mr. Niles entered into the firm of Whittemore, Niles & Hall, dealers in stationery and blank-books. This firm did not specially prosper. While Mr. Niles was connected with its fortunes, Mr. Lewis A. Roberts, then bookbinder and manufacturer of stationery, had taken his two brothers into partnership and organized the jobbing business of Roberts Brothers. In 1859 this business was sold out, and Mr. Lewis A. Roberts went to London, where he first saw photograph albums. He immediately arranged for their manufacture in America, and introduced those once so profitable articles of trade in this country. In 1862 Mr. Lewis A. Roberts organized a publishing business with his brothers. Mr. Hall, of the firm of Whittemore, Niles & Hall, entered into their employ and he subsequently induced Mr. Niles to do the same. This he did in 1863, and shortly after the publication of books was entrusted to his charge. The first books issued by Roberts Brothers were printed from the stereotype plates of C. S. Francis & Co., of New York, and the first volume with their imprint was entitled "Fairy Tales." Mr. Niles proved so competent a help in this branch of the business that in 1872 he was taken into partnership on most favorable terms, though he could furnish but little capital except his talents and business capacity. The firm of Ticknor & Fields in the immediate neighborhood of the new house were already the successful publishers of the choicest belles-lettres authors of America, and under the direction of Mr. James T. Fields had begun to reprint the best literary works of the hour that were appearing in England.

Mr. Niles had the same ambition and trained literary taste as the older firm, but he was obliged to begin competition on very small margins. His first discovery was Jean Ingelow, who had just published her first volume in England. It had an immense sale as brought out with the imprint of Roberts Brothers, and there followed a series of works which met with remarkable success in this country. Just as it was coming into fame Mr. Niles also captured the anonymous work, "Ecce Homo," which was launched into fabulous popularity by the reviews of W. E. Gladstone and Cardinal Newman. The success of Oliver

Optic's books suggested to Mr. Niles the thought of similar books for girls, and having been much pleased by "Hospital Sketches," by Louisa M. Alcott, published in 1867 by Ticknor & Fields, he sent for Miss Alcott and engaged her for this work. "Little Women" made the fortunes of the publishing house and of the author, and the long list of books that followed added steadily to their prosperity. Among the authors who are now identified with the Roberts Brothers Mr. Niles secured E. C. Stedman, T. B. Aldrich, "Susan Coolidge," Mrs. Helen Hunt Jackson, whose "Ramona" was one of the big successes, Dr. E. E. Hale, Mrs. Caroline Dall, Mrs. L. C. Moulton, Gilbert Hamerton, Sir Edwin Arnold, and Joaquin Miller. Mr. Niles' correspondence with these writers was rich and confidential, and perhaps no publisher has left a richer collection of literary correspondence. He magnified his office by making it a truly literary function, and he had no stronger desire than to add good names to his very choice catalogue, to publish the best books, and to see that the authors of them received their due reward. His warmest friends were among authors, and in their mutual relations all traditions of distrust were set aside. Mr. Niles suffered for years with some painful affection of the stomach, and was travelling for his health when death overtook him at Perugia.

THE MAKING OF MAGAZINES.

In an address recently made before the Quill Club of New York, Mr. Frank H. Scott, president of the Century Company, made the following interesting remarks concerning the cost of producing a modern illustrated magazine. We quote from Mr. Scott's remarks as printed in

The Critic:

"It is a mistaken idea that the cost of the best magazines has been lessened of late. Cheap publications, those in which the principal expense is for paper and printing, can be made, for these two items of cost were never so low as now. But the cost of everything else connected with the production of a magazine has steadily increased. The prices paid authors and artists are more than double what they were twenty years ago. Every number of The Century Magazine costs more than $10,000 for contributions and pictures before it goes to press, and if we add to this the salaries of editors and managers, the rent and expense of maintenance of a great establishment, you will see that only immense editions can make it possible to supply the present magazine, containing, as it does, as much matter and as well printed as the average four or five dollar book, for 35 cents.

"I know there has been of late a movement toward cheap magazines. These are possible, they may be desirable, but they will not be the same. You cannot get 25 cents' worth for 12½ cents, nor the value of 35 cents for a quarter. In the long run a 15-cent magazine will be but a 15-cent magazine—no more, no less. On the present basis of cost The Century and Harper's would not be self-sustaining at these rates. But some say the advertisements will make up the difference. Will they? Waiving the question as to whether more advertising is desirable, it is yet to be proved that more wages or higher rates can be secured. The larger magazines have secured their patronage because of their excellence, insuring the character and extent of their circulation. Cheapen or change the character of the contents or circulation and you change the value of the advertising pages. Even if a 10-cent magazine has twice the circulation of a 35-cent one, it does not follow that its advertising space is doubly or even equally valuable.

"It may be less so; indeed, for many articles it probably is. But for the present, bear in mind that the cheap magazines are largely in the experimental stage; they have not yet equalled the older magazines in that combination of acceptable contents, circulation, and advertising patronage which have given the older ones their reputation and success, and until they have done so and proved themselves not only equally acceptable to the public, but profitable to their owners on the new basis, we can but await with interest the result of the experiment."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

PAUL BOURGET, the novelist, and Albert Sorel, the historien, were elected members of the French Academy to fill the vacancies caused by the deaths of Messrs. Taine and Ducamp.

MRS. EMMA GOTTHEIL, wife of Prof. J. H. Gottheil, of Columbia College, has had conferred upon her the title of "Officier de l'Académie Française," in recognition of her services rendered to the French language and literature.

WALTER BESANT, though he writes a great deal about love and talks even more on that interesting topic, does not look like a man of sentimental inclinations. His high forehead and his full beard suggest a scientist, and he is sedate and middle-aged. Mr. Besant is broad enough to have a keen admiration for some of his fellow-craftsmen—particularly for Kipling, Stevenson, and George Meredith.

A CHICAGO newspaper man, Stanley Waterloo, broke the record lately in writing a book. A Chicago publisher sent for Mr. Waterloo and asked him whether he could have a book on the Coxey movement ready for the press in four days. Mr. Waterloo, being a well-equiped journalist, full of resources and knowing not the word "fail," said he could. This was on Monday morning. The publisher said "Go ahead," and gave him carte blanche as to expenses. A staff of writers was organized, specialists were engaged for the historical part of the work, photographers took the field, typewriters clicked day and night, and Mr. Waterloo himself hardly ate or slept. The result was that on Thursday night the "copy" for a book of over one hundred thousand words, with forty illustrations, was in the hands of printers.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE first number of Direct Legislation Record, a new monthly journal, has just been published by James W. Sullivan, author of "Direct Legislation"—a little book which has done much to inform American readers about the Swiss initiative and referendum. New Jersey's agitation for Swiss methods in law-making occupy the chief part of the first issue of the Record—which is founded as the organ of direct legislation for America. The Record is published at 104 Elm Street, New York, at fifty cents a year.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION, Washington, D. C., has just issued a list of its publications for sale or exchange, dated May, 1894. The list is arranged by subjects, each title being numbered, and when the book is for sale the price is noted. An alphabetical index is also added. (26 p. 8°.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE FRANKLIN PUBLISHING Co., of Boston, will shortly publish a new novel by Robert Appleton, entitled "After the Manner of Men."

THE NATIONAL CITATION Co., Dublin, Tex., have succeeded King & Leonard in the publication of "King and Leonard's U. S. Supreme Court Citations."

MR. J. B. FERGUSON. of the firm of Ferguson & Co., booksellers of Winnipeg, was married on the 8th ult. to Miss Walsh, granddaughter of the poet Charles Heavysege, author of "Saul," "Jepthah's Daughter," etc. The happy couple have our sincere wishes for a bright and prosperous future.

THE BOW-KNOT PUB. Co., Chicago, will publish at once a volume entitled "Sophos, or, the kidnapping of the kings," by Albert Albery, a London journalist, who suggests the wholesale capture and transportation of all the monarchs of Europe as the likeliest plan by which the Socialists can effect the aims for which they are striving.

THE publication committee of the general committee on the centennial celebration of Washington's inaugural, who prepared a memorial volume of the celebration of which an edition of 938 copies were printed, report that all of them have been disposed of and the plates destroyed. The cost of the publication has been $28,656.88. The balance of $23.44 has been turned over to the memorial arch committee.

MR. PAUL MEYER, who has just returned from Europe, reports that he has made special arrangements with foreign publishers for the publication and translation in this country of new works. His firm at an early day will make an exhibition of the original designs of Myrbach, Lynch, Rossi, and Jeanniot, which have been used for the illustration of such works as "La Dame aux Camélias," "Cosmopolis," Mensonges, etc.; and also of the choice bindings of Marius Michel, David, Kaufmann, and others.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS issue this week an interesting contribution to the literature of the Protectorate, entitled "Oliver Cromwell: a history comprising a narrative of his life, with extracts from his letters and speeches, and an account of the political, religious, and military affairs of England during his time," by Samuel Harden Church, who has made the subject a study for many years. They have also just ready a life of Newton Booth, war governor of California, together with his speeches and addresses, edited, with introduction and notes, by Lauren E. Crane.

It was recently announced that D. L. Moody, the Evangelist, had received $1,250,000 in royalties from the publishers of "Gospel Hymns" that are published under his name. This, it seems, is an error, and the statement is made upon reliable authority that neither Mr. Moody nor his faithful co-worker, Mr. Sankey, have ever received a cent from this royalty. They have refused to accept any part of it. At first it was placed in the hands of trustees, who distributed it to religious and charitable enterprises according to their judgment. Afterward, at the request of these trustees, the moderate amount of royalty has been turned over to the trustees of the Northfield and Mount Hermon seminaries.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS IN RELATION TO BOOKS, Etc.

THE summary statement of the imports and exports of the United States for the month ending April 30, 1894, and for the ten months ending the same, compared with the corresponding periods of 1893 (corrected to May 26, 1894), makes the following showing as regards books, etc.:

TERMS OF ADVERTISING

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per Une, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as " not having been received."

The Annual Literary Index,

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER,

with the co-operation of members of the American Li-brary Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1893 complements the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1893 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1893; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1893; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1893; (5) authors deceased in 1893. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

The volume includes also the features of the "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form, and later issued as an annual volume.

CHAPTER 1.

| The genealogy of Christ from Abraham to Joseph. | It is genealogy of Christ from Abraham to Joseph. | It is iii. | Jer. 23. 5. | Christ are fourteen generations.

> 18 ¶3Now the birth of Jē'şus Christ was on this wise: When as his mother Mā'ry was espoused to Jo'seph, before they came together, she was found with child sof the Hō'ly Ghost.

> 19 Then Jo'seph her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her a publick example, was minded to put her away privily.

20 But while he thought on these things, behold, the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Jō'şeph, thou son of Dā'vid, fear not to take unto thee Ma'ry thy wife: " for that which is 4 conceived in her is of the Hō'ly Ghost.

21 *And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name 5 JE SUS: for 9 he shall save his peo-
